

Banking Bill of Rights

Old Glory Bank holds these truths to be self-evident, that every American has the right to financial freedom, that big banks should not dictate who gets to use America's financial institutions, that there is nothing more un-American than being canceled for your beliefs.

Freedom of Association

The right to bank without the risk of cancellation because of your faith, industry, or beliefs.

Freedom of Financial Privacy

The right to banking privacy, shielded from improper government snooping.

Freedom from Censorship

The right to access online payment apps without the threat of cancellation by big tech censors.

Freedom of Lifestyle

The right to banking services without restrictions imposed by a "social credit score."

Freedom of American Values

The right to bank with institutions that respect and support your American values.
